Why e-Mental health?

- Access to mental health services continues to be a significant barrier to people getting the help they need
- E-Therapies can be as effective as face-to-face therapies, including the delivery of cognitive behavioural therapy for mild to moderate anxiety and depression

Participatory design (also known as co-operative design or co-design) is an approach to design attempting to actively involve all stakeholders in the design process to help ensure the result meets their needs.

In healthcare, this principle is demonstrated in the push for patient-centered design. The need patient engagement – asking patients what they want instead of assuming - is further supported by movements such as Patients Included.

It all starts with...

EMPATHY

Mental Health

STEP 1: PARTNER DIALOGUE

6 minutes (2 sessions x 3 min each)

Think about...

The last time you accessed (or tried to access) a health service for yourself or someone you care about

Questions for your partner...

- How was that experience for you?
- Was it a positive experience? Why or why not?
- Were there opportunities for improvement?
- Did you get what you wanted to get out of it?

Commission
of Canada

Commission de la santé mentale
du Canada

STEP 2: DIG DEEPER

4 minutes (2 sessions x 2 min each)

Focus in...

- Was there one part of your partners story that really stood out to you?
- Was there one component that – if improved – could make their experience easier/better/faster?
  - Dig deeper!

STEP 4: WRITE A PROBLEM STATEMENT

3 minutes

Example #1:

“Cameron needs a way to connect with a mental health professional in his community BECAUSE/BUT/AND there are not enough counsellors to access timely support.”

Example #2:

“Melissa needs a way to find more information about alcohol dependence BECAUSE/BUT/AND she is worried about her sisters drinking habits and wants to know how to talk to a professional about it”
