

Contract Opportunity: Registered Dietician

The Nuu-chah-nulth Tribal Council (NTC) Nursing Program is seeking a Registered Dietician for an exciting contract opportunity to support diabetes programming for Nuu-Chah-Nulth members on Vancouver Island. This temporary, part-time, contract position will be based out of Port Alberni and will include both individual client counseling as well as group teaching sessions. This position is funded through a special project and will allow for flexible hours while providing diabetes self-management education for people living with type 2 diabetes through a strengths-based approach. The RD will function within a patient-centric NTC health team guided by the Nuu-Chah-Nulth Nursing Framework in collaboration with a Registered Nurse and Health Promotion Worker.

Responsibilities:

- Provide individual and group education, counselling, and teaching, create client-centric nutritional plans, and support behavioural change strategies within the RD scope of practice
- Perform community nutrition needs assessments, identify barriers to food security, and support community initiatives to improve food security
- Coordinate activities and liaise with a variety of community partners, nurses, dietitians, physicians, and other allied health care providers

Preferred Qualifications:

- Undergraduate degree in nutrition-related field required
- Current registration and good standing with the College of Registered Dietitians of British Columbia
- Current Certified Diabetes Educator (CDE) certification would be considered an asset

Contract length: 700 hours

Wage: To be determined based on experience
