SOCIAL DETERMINANTS OF HEALTH STRATEGY

VANCOUVER ISLAND REGION

DECEMBER 2017

Outline

- What We Have Heard
 - Vancouver Island Caucus in Fall 2016
 - Vancouver Island Caucus in Spring 2017
 - Family Meetings in Fall 2017
- Discussion Paper on Ten-Year Social Determinants of Health Strategy

Vancouver Island Health Plan

- Vancouver Island Health and Wellness is based on a wholistic view of health and wellness

Promote mental wellness with focus on children, youth and parents

Reconfirm strength of family and parenting as foundation for health and wellness

Increase coordinated efforts to promote the wellness of children, including children in care

Improve multi-sector coordination, including the health, education, children and family, and justice systems

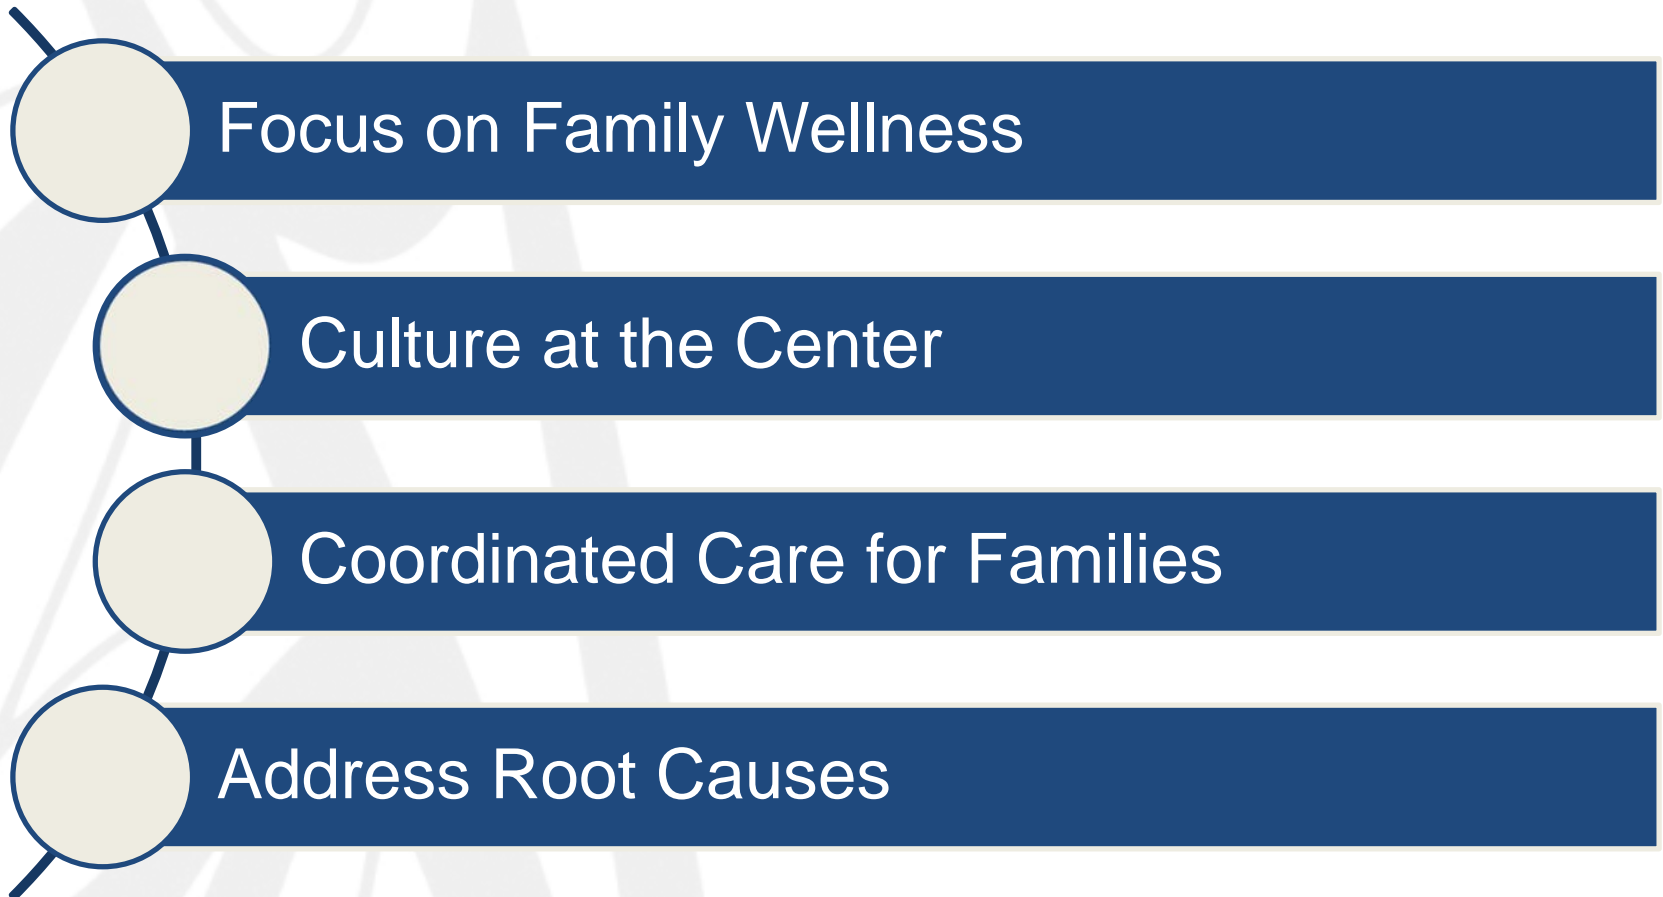

Challenges with Current Structures

- Vancouver Island communities made clear recommendations about how services can be better delivered

Vancouver Island Prevention Approach

- Vancouver Island communities are calling for a prevention approach across all sectors

Coast Salish Update

- Coast Salish met on November 6th-7th
- Coast Salish currently reviewing its Terms of Reference to clarify decision-making processes, participation, and the role of the FNHC representative
- Coast Salish reviewed the discussion paper on the ten-year determinants strategy and made recommendations that the FNHC:
 - Take into account work that has been done in the past
 - Be clear about who has been engaged
 - Be clear about where proposed solutions come from
- More discussion needed on the discussion paper and direction of the work

Nuu-chah-Nulth Update

- FNHC and NTC Chiefs signed MOU on September 25
- FNHC recognises and respects the rights, jurisdiction, autonomy and authority of NTC First Nations
- FNHC will advocate and support the NTC to make progress on its mandate, to seek funding for the NTC and NTC First Nations, to make progress on the social determinants of health, and to improve program and service delivery for the Nuu-chah-nulth
- NTC has discussed changes to its Terms of Reference to reconcile and align decision-making of the Nuu-chah-nulth Health Caucus and Nuu-chah-nulth Tribal Council

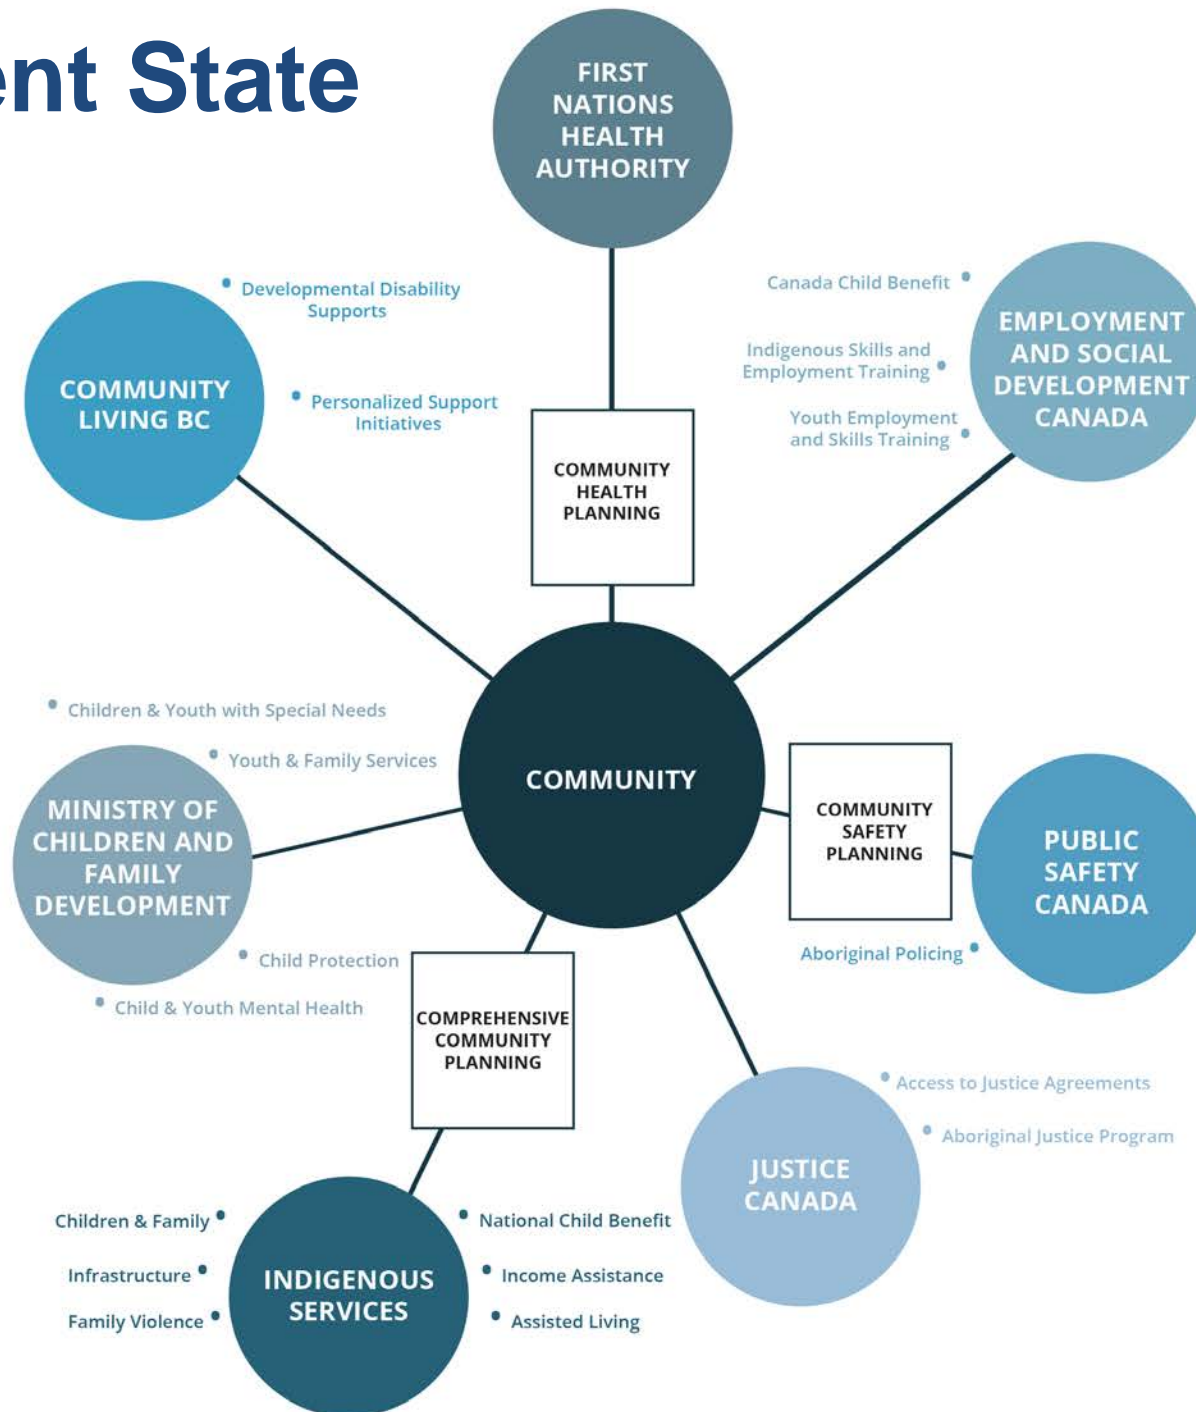

Kwakwaka'wakw Update

- Kwakawaka'wakw Health Caucus met on November 9th-10th and November 28th
- The Kwakawaka'wakw have expressed concerns with the work and engaged in a thorough review and edit of the discussion paper
- Broadly, the Kwakawaka'wakw expressed concerns about:
 - FNHC mandate and direction on social determinants
 - Priority areas not fully aligned with Kwakawaka'wakw priorities
 - Clarity on definitions and terminology
 - Clarity on the engagement and approvals process
 - New resources for Community-Driven and Nation-Based processes
- A letter from Kwakawaka'wakw with a summary of the discussion and concerns is in your package

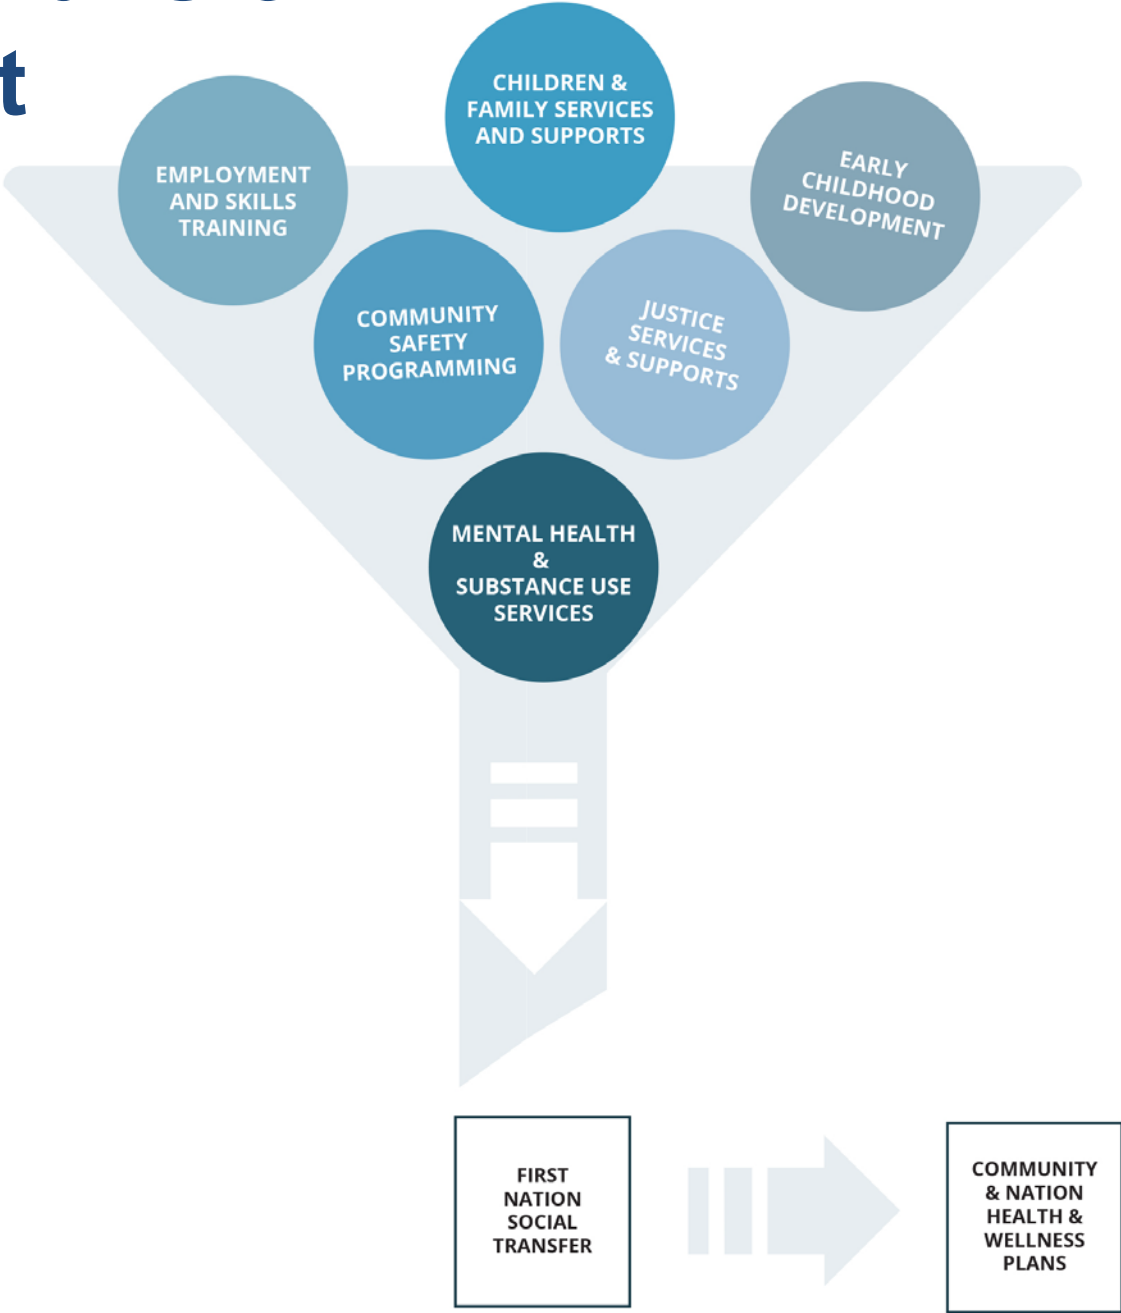

Social Determinants of Health Strategy

- First Nations in BC have been clear in their calls for:
 - Nations want a Nation-to-Nation relationship with Canada
 - Desire for flexible funding envelopes
 - Desire to reducing silos, removing rules and significantly simplifying the process for accessing federal funding
 - Desire for reduced reporting burden with a focus on outcomes
 - Evolve government role from a service provider to a partner in supporting community-led change
 - Build relationships based on recognition, respect and reciprocal accountability
